

THE ART OF METAL GEAR SOLID

BY YOJI SHINKAWA

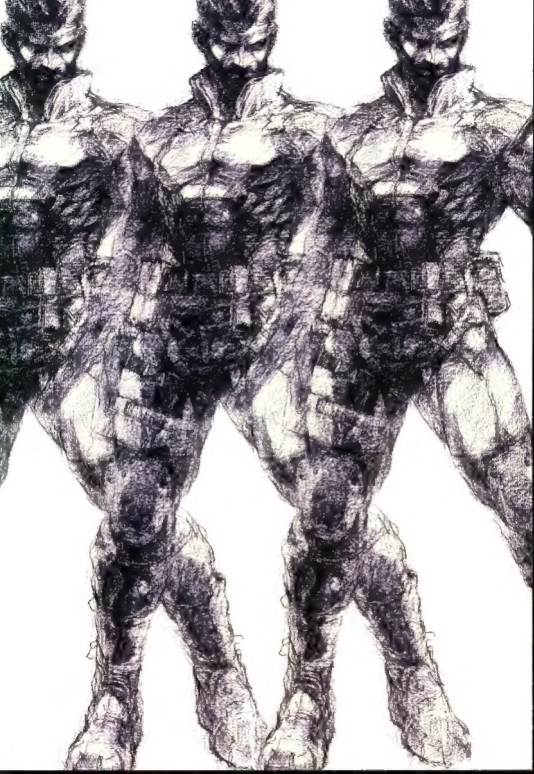

You'll have two mission objectives. First you're to rescue the DARPA Chief Donald Anderson and the president of ArmsTech, Kenneth Baker. They're both being held as hostages. Secondly, you're to investigate whether or not the terrorists have the ability to launch a nuclear strike and stop them if they do. —Any question, Snake?

This is drawn with the same technique used in the postcard that's handed away as bonus give away to the people who reserved the product in beforehand. It turned out to be really crispy and dried out because I painted again and again with diluted Chinese ink and correcting into on plain copying sheet. At the end master showed up from the underneath. It felt like... was painting with oil. It was fun because drawing this picture was like what I had been doing in the past.

This is the first drawing made for the magazine ads of Metal Gear Solid. It ran across a page with the picture on page 45. This comic-like picture is so absurd that the game was composed with strong scenarios as a base. Words are not related, so don't be confused with that.

2 Mr Kojima, the director asked me to "draw ads only with female characters" which I remember, had hard time. He even titled it "Love's Role".

These are the series of magazine covers right after "Metal Gear Rising" came out. When I was done with the game itself, I started working on illustrations for the jacket and endpaper. I feel like I am done with the project. Since then, I haven't got off track. Maybe, maybe not.

This was the last picture that involved the magazine, which depicts the 3.5-inch Game Boy Advance SOC OM paired with C.G. and SOC OM in the game because it looks good, and that's about the only reason why it's there. It's single in size and square in shape, so they will use polygon graphics. And it's good because it's 40 caliber. The final design is different from the one the US SOC OM adopted. I really think that the prototypal is much better in a design.
